

Jordan Forest Products

Jordan Lumber & Supply, started in Mt. Gilead, North Carolina in 1939, has become one of the most respected mills on the east coast as well as one of the largest privately owned lumber companies in the country. Jordan Forest Products in Barnesville, Georgia, purchased from Weyerhaeuser in 2004 has quickly established the same reputation for superior quality and service that is synonymous with the Jordan name. Currently operated by second and third generation family members Jordan Lumber has endured major change but their goal remains the same: "Our commitment is to provide customers with both the specialty and commodity forest products for their needs, combining superior quality with superior service." - Bob Jordan, President

With large investments in high-yield innovations, energy conserving technology and refined timberland strategies, Jordan remains on the cutting edge of wood product manufacturing. Laser-scanning and snapshot optimization systems insure the highest yields. Our advanced zone-controlled, steam-fired dry kilns can accommodate specialty drying schedules, enabling us to condition and equalize lumber to meet customers' most exacting specifications. High-speed grade-readers, both before and after the drying process give us the ability to separate any grade at any point. The result is dimensionally stable, attractive, wear-resistant pine, in grades that fulfill a wide range of applications for both the domestic and export markets.
